RESIGNS HIS PASTORATE.

Congregation of Lucile Memorial Church Will Lose Rev. T. F. Walton.

POPULAR AMONG ALL CLASSES.

Rev. T. F. Walton has tendered his resignation as pastor of Lucile Memorial Presbyterian church, to take effect August 31.

Rev. Walton formally announced his resignation from the pulpit at Sunday morning's services. He preached Sunday evening and will preach here the second and third Sundays of this month and at Gaston the fourth Sunday. If he is in the city August 30, the fifth Sunday, he will deliver his farewell sermon that date. If he is not here there will be no farewell sermon. In case he delivers one the subject of his address will be announced in the News the week previous.

As pastor of the Presbyterian church at Gaston Rev. Walton has not formally announced his resignation, but it also will go into effect August 31.

Coming from Columbia, Ky., Rev. Walton first took charge of this pastorate in February, 1902. He was preceded by the good words of those who knew him. He was known as an eloquent and earnest minister of the gospel, a progressive and highly respected citizen and a man liked by all classes. He has lived in Cloverport about eighteen months. During this time he has done much good work, especially in the temperance fight, last fall and in the completion of the church building; he has endeavored himself into every member of his congregation and has won the good will and admiration of everyone. In fact, everything that was said about him by the good people of Columbia can be said by the good people of Cloverport.

Rev. Walton has sold part of his household furniture and has the rest for sale. He does not know as yet where he will locate. He has two offers, one of them being at Barboursville, Ky., the home of himself and his beloved wife, who died early this year. He leaves his present pastorate for the sake of his children, whom he wishes to take to Barboursville. Wherever he may go it is certain the good wishes of his many friends in this city will follow him.

Point Pill Pleasure.

The pills that are potent in their action and pleasant in effect are Dr. Williams' Little Early Risers. W. S. Philpot, of Albany, Ga., says: "I was suffering from a nervous headache and it was it did me more good than calomel, blue mass or any other pills I ever took and the same time it effected me pleasantly. Little Early Risers are certainly an ideal pill!" Sold by all Druggists.

A Notable Gathering of Sunday-School Workers.

The State Sunday-school Convention, which meets at Lexington, August 18-20, should not be forgotten by the Sunday-school workers of the county. The prospects are that this will be the largest convention ever held. Fully one thousand delegates are expected.

About ninety County Conventions have been held since May last, and the whole State is aglow.

Excell. Pearce and Briner are names to conjure with. My, will it not be fine to meet and hear and know these great workers, and join with them two thousand to three thousand in singing hallohallo under the leadership of the incomparable Excell! And just think what it means to come in vital and sympathetic touch with one thousand of Kentucky's leading Sunday-school workers. This will be a liberal education in itself. No Sunday-school workers can afford to miss it. None can form any conception of what a great and inspiring convention like this is worth to him until he has attended it.

WILL BE REBUILT.

Tell City to be Practically New Boat—Henry Harley to Take Her Place

The Louisville and Evansville Mail Line packet, Tell City, passed up Saturday almost a day late, owing to a break down in her machinery. She was followed immediately by the Henry Harley, a Cumberland river boat, which goes to take her place in the trade while she is placed on the ways, where she will remain during the rest of the summer. The Harley is smaller than the Tell City but will be amply able to handle her traffic.

When the Tell City returns from the ways at Madison everything but her hull will be new. Her old boilers are to be taken out and new ones put in and her machinery will receive a thorough overhauling. The cabin will be rebuilt and refurnished and in every way the boat will be put in tip top condition. It has always been difficult for the boat to get hands on account of the superciliousness of the negroes and it is hoped these numerous improvements will do away with this.

Narrow Escape From Death.

Gaston, Ky., Aug. 4.—(Special.)—John Riley, colored, had a narrow escape with his life Sunday morning. The colored people had a picnic and dance at Gaston Saturday night and Riley was up all night dancing and having a good time. He says he sat down on the railroad track just outside of the rail to the his shoe and while doing so he fell asleep. When he came to himself he was in the air. The cannon ball train had struck him, but slowed down, picked him up and brought him into Gaston, where he lives.

IMPORTANT SUITS FILED.

Jas. Hovious, Mary J. Miller and Others Sue to Cancel Lease on Land.

N. F. LEAMON WANTS DAMAGES.

Hardinburg, Ky., Aug. 4.—(Special.)—A suit for $25,000 damages was filed in the Circuit clerk's office Monday against the Louisville, Henderson & St. Louis R. Y. Co. by Nannie F. Leamon, administratrix of ——— Leamon deceased. The petition alleges that the plaintiff's intestate was a brakeman in their employ and was killed by a train between Webster and Irvington sometime in September 1902, by the gross negligence and carelessness of the defendant's employees of a superior grade of service to the deceased. The attorneys for the plaintiff are Marshall Ballitt and Bennett H. Young, Louisville, and Judge N. Mc Mercer, of Hardinburg.

Another suit of importance was filed this week by former Gov. W. W. Bradley, as attorney for James Hovious, of Halfmoon Bay, Cal., and Mrs. Enola S. Rafferty, Mrs. Mary J. Miller and others, of Cloverport, seeking to cancel and annul a lease in land executed by the late James T. Miller to the Tar Creek Mineral and Natural Gas Co. Several hundred acres are under lease to this company and the plaintiffs are asking that this cloud to their title be removed because of the fact that no effort has been made on the part of the company to develop the property since the lease was executed in the year 1888.

FOUL PLAY SUSPECTED.

Wm T. Alvey Died Before Putting His Money in Bank

Tell City, Ind., August 1.—William T. Alvey, of Derby, Perry county, went to Cloverport, Ky., early in June with $1,500 cash, intending to deposit it in the Cloverport bank. The following day he was suddenly stricken and died and his body was returned to Derby for burial. Recently his sister discovered that no deposit was made in the Cloverport bank, and that the money is missing, and she has caused the body to be exhumed to determine if her brother met death by foul play. An analysis of the contents of the stomach are being made.

FULL WEEK IN SOCIETY.

Irvington's Good People Open Their Hospitable Homes for Enjoyment.

ARE HAVING MANY VISITORS.

Irvington, Ky., Aug. 4.—(Special.)—The social calendar for the past week has been very full, and the people of this community have given themselves up to real enjoyment, believing that when you play, play in earnest, and when you work do the same work in earnest.

Monday evening Mrs. Harry White entertained in honor of her guests from Cloverport, Miss Jennie Mabell Harris and Miss Jane Smith.

Tuesday evening the ice cream supper given by the Missionary Society of the M. E. church at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Jolly was a success and afforded the young people enjoyment as well as profit.

Wednesday evening it was always looked forward to as "prayer meeting night" and every one is given a cordial invitation to attend and are welcomed by the leaders in this very important pleasure and duty.

Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. Piggott gave an informal musical. The many visitors, as well as the home talent, was at its best. The Musical Romance was intensely interesting and kept up quite a lively gossip. This was one of the most delightful social functions of the week.

Friday evening Miss Esie Biggs entertained in honor of her guests, the Misses Hook. Those present were Misses Annie Lee Bandy, Mary Jacob Tyler, Eva McGlothlin, Jane Smith, Mary Henry, Eva Herndon, Jessie Brady and Mrs. Clark, Messrs. Wimp, Kemper, Warden, Bryant, Jolly, Herndon, Ford, Jordan and Ed Fouts. Saturday morning Miss Mary Wratner's dinner party was much enjoyed by a small number of guests.

Saturday evening was the lawn and piazza party given by Miss Annie Lee Bandy at her home near town. Misses Wolford and Owings being the honorees.

Interesting Contest Promised

L. H. Scherer, of Haverhill, is preparing to give a clay pigeon shoot at Haverhill, August 18. The contest promises to be interesting if the programme is carried out as there will be many prizes and numerous experts to try for the first, second and third money. The shoot will be pulled off on N. S. Grathouse's beautiful meadow below Haverhill. Expert trap shooters from Owensboro, Evansville, Henderson, Lewisport, Tell City, Cannelton and Louisville are expected to be present and the Cloverport Gun Club will send four of its best men.

Wreck Presents Novel Sight.

Haverhill, Ky., July 31.—The coal boat which was wrecked here by the steamer J. B. Finley last spring and which have been abandoned by the coal dredgers, present a novel sight these days. Hundreds of men and boys can be seen every day on the old hulk diving for coal and loading it into skiffs, after which they bring it to shore and sell it for a mere nothing. People here are having their winter coal supply put in of the choicest Pittsburg coal for less than they have been paying for the soft coal mined in this section.

Tra Sarah Pate Dead.

Mrs. Sarah Pate, an estimable old lady, died at her home in Elk City Saturday as a result of a fall she received in Owensboro last summer. Mrs. Pate was a aunt of C. E. Lightfoot of this city and Dr. J. F. Lightfoot of Haverhill, and was sister of the late Thomas Newmyer, who lived here and at Haverhill, having raised for many years a number of good horses. She was a number of good horses for sale. She was a number of good horses for sale.

HELD OVER TO OCTOBER.

Three Moonshiners Unable to Give Bail and are Jailed at Louisville

Saturday morning at Owensboro the examining trial of Bud Keizer, Ed Richardson and Lon McGuffin, who are charged with running an illicit still near the Constantine neighborhood, took place before Commissioner Lindsey United States Marshal Gilliland, who had arrested the men, had succeeded in securing the men making mash and manufacturing the liquor or had bought it from them. He was unable to locate the still itself but the evidence was so clear that the prisoners refused to go on the stand and they were held over to the October term of the United States court. The bail was fixed at $700 each, but they were unable to give it and went to jail. Marshal Gilliland takes them to Louisville this week, where they will be lodged in jail and where their trial will take place.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF INTEREST

Mr. Charles Edward Kell and Miss Elizabeth Watkins Hamilton to be Married.

Mrs. Mary Adelle Hamilton announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Elizabeth Watkins Hamilton to Mr. Charles Edward Kell, of Weehawken, N. J. The wedding will take place Thursday, September 10, at 10 o'clock in the morning at the home of the bride's mother. It will be a quiet affair, only the relatives of the contracting parties being invited.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Kell will after their wedding trip for the East. They will first visit Mr. Kell's mother at Weehawken. After leaving there they will visit several Eastern cities and then go to Cannelton, Penn., where they will make their future home. Several large cement factories are located there and Mr. Kell is superintendent of one of them.

Infant Daughter Dies.

After we had gone to press last Tuesday evening the sad news of the death of Rev. and Mrs. J. F. Vines' infant daughter was received. She was only about two weeks old and died of cholera infantum. The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon and the interment was in the Cloverport cemetery. A large concourse of members of Rev. Vines' congregation and friends of the family attended.

Rev. and Mrs. Vines have the sympathy of the community in their affliction.

Horse Killed by Lightning.

"Fay", Jas. B. Fisher's buggy horse, was killed by lightning Sunday afternoon during the hard rain and thunderstorm. The animal was standing in the yard at the Fisher home, on the Cloverport and Haverhill turnpike, when the storm came on and after the most severe part he was found lying dead where a bolt of lightning had struck him. "Fay" was one of the best buggy horses in this section of the county and was familiar to everyone.

Capitalizing His Company.

Mr. J. C. Bolling has been securing stock this week for the purpose of starting a powder fender enterprise. They will capitalize at $10,000, putting the powder in at half, the other half the citizens being asked to subscribe. He is meeting with considerable encouragement.—Hancock (Clarion).

Passes Raised Bills.

Leitchfield, Ky., July 31.—Sheriff Coppage brought to K. K. Watson here last night and lodged him in jail. He is charged with raising bills of $1 to $10 and passing them in Grayson and Breckenridge counties. He will have hearing before Judge H. C. Rogers today.

Graustark

Lorenz, observed his adversary, displaying his ignorance of less majesty. English, pale and very much concerned, dragged him away, the prince having the rifle aimed at them, followed by his chattering, cursing companions. Prince Gabriel was standing near the door as they passed out. He looked at the Americans sharply, and English detected something like triumphant joy in his eyes.

"Good Lord, Lorry, this means a duel! Don't you know that?" cried he as they started upstairs.

"Of course I do, and I'm going to kill that villain too!" exclaimed Lorry loud enough to be heard from one end of the room to the other.

"This is horrible, horrible! Let me square it up some way yet!" began the alarmed Englishman.

"Square it up? Look here, Harry English, I am the one who will do the squaring. If he wants a duel, he can have it at any time and in any style he desires."

"He may kill you!"

"Not while a just God rules over our destinies. I'll take my chances with pistols, and now let me tell you one thing, my boy: He'll never live to touch his lips to her, nor will there be a royal wedding. She cannot marry a dead man." He was beside himself with excitement, and it was fully half an hour before English could bring him to a sensible discussion of the affair. Gradually he became cool, and the fever again, he did not lose his head again.

"Those pistols at ten paces and at 8 tomorrow," he said nonchalantly, as a tap at the door of their apartment announced the arrival of the prince's friend, the Duke of Mirox.

English admitted two well dressed, black bearded men, both of whom had sat at the prince's table in the cafe. They introduced themselves as the Duke of Mirox and Colonel Atkinson. Their visit was brief, formal and conclusive.

"We understand that you are persona grata in your own America?" said the Duke of Mirox after a few moments.

"We are sons of business men," responded Mr. English.

"Oh, well, I hardly know. But his highness is very willing to waive his rank and to grant you a meeting."

"I'm delighted by his highness' concession, which I perfectly understand," observed Mr. English. "Now, what have we to settle, gentlemen?"

"The details of weapons."

"When English announced that his principal chose pistols, a strange gleam crept into the eyes of the Asphalians, and they seemed satisfied. Colonel Atkinson acted as interpreter during this short but very important interview, which was carried on in the Asphalians' language. Lorry sat on the window sill, steadily gazing into the night. The visitors departed soon, and it was understood that Prince Lorenz would consent to meet Mr. Lorry at 8 o'clock on the next morning in the valley beyond the castle, two miles from town. There was no law prohibiting duels in Graustark.

"Well, you're in for it, old man," said English gloomily, his chin in his hands as he fastened melancholy eyes upon his friend.

"I'm a little worried about it, Harry. There's only one way for this thing to turn out."

"What's that?"

"Well, your highness is doomed," Lorry spoke with the earnestness and conviction of one who is permitted to see into the future.

"Coming be prepared to write some letters, not to say farewell, but to explain to certain persons the cause of the duel and to say that he cherished the good fortune which had presently befell him. One of these letters was addressed to his mother, another to the father of Prince Lorenz and the last to the Prince of Graustark. To the latter he wrote much that did not appear in the epistles directed to the others. English had been in his room more than an hour and had frequently called to his friend and begged him to secure what rest he could in order that their nerves might be steady in the morning. But it was not until after midnight that the duelist sealed the envelopes, directed them and knocked at his second's door to say: "I shall intrust these letters to you, Harry. You must see that they start on their way tomorrow."

Then he went to bed and to sleep.

At 6 o'clock his second, who had slept but little, called him. They dressed hurriedly and prepared for the ride to the valley. Their own new English bulldog revolvers were to serve as weapons in the coming combat, and a carriage was to be in waiting for them in a side street at 7 o'clock.

Before leaving their room they heard evidence of commotion in the hotel and were apprehensive, but the inmates had learned of the duel and were making ready to follow the fighters in the appointed spot. There was a confusion of voices, the sound of rushing feet, the banging of doors, the noise increasing as the two men stepped into the open hall. They were amazed to see half dressed men and women standing or running about the halls, intense excitement in their faces and in their actions. White uniformed policemen were flocking into the corridors. Soldiers, constables and lawless fresh from their beds, came dashing upon the scene. There were excited cries, angry shouts and more noisy fighting than all, horrified looks and wilder cries.

"What has happened?" asked Lorry stepping out the door.

"It can't be a lie! Look! The door to that room down there seems to be the center of attraction. Hold on! Don't go over there, Lorry. There may be something to unnerve you, and that must not happen now. Let us go down this stairway. It leads to a side entrance, I think. They were half way down the stairs when the thunder of rushing feet in the hall above came to their ears, causing them to hesitate between curiosity and good judgment. "They are coming this way."

"Hear them how! What the devil can be the cause of all this commotion?" cried the other.

At that instant a half dozen police guards appeared at the head of the stairs. Upon seeing the Americans they stopped and turned as if to oppose a foe approaching from the opposite direction. Baron Dangloss separated himself from the white coats above and called to the men below. In alarm they started for the street door. He was with them in an instant, his usually red face changing from white to purple, his anxious eyes darting first toward the group above and then toward the bewildered Americans.

"What's the matter?" demanded Lorry.

"There! See!" cried Dangloss, and even as he spoke a conflict began at the head of the stairs, the police, augmented by a few soldiers struggling against a howling, enraged mass of Asphalians. Dangloss dragged his reluctant charges through a small door, and they found themselves in the large room of the hotel. Despite their queries he offered no explanation, but rushed them along, passing out of the opposite door, down a short stairway and into a side street. A half dozen police guards were awaiting them, and before they could catch the faintest idea of what it all meant they were running with the officers through an alley as if pursued by demons.

"Now, what in thunder does this mean?" panted Lorry, attempting to slacken the pace, but English was just beginning to regain their senses.

"Do not stop! Do not stop!" wheeled Dangloss. "You must get to a place of safety. We cannot prevent something dreadful happening if you are caught here."

"If we are caught," cried English. "Why, what have we done?"

"Unhappily, Baron Dangloss. This is an outrage," shouted Lorry.

"For heaven's sake, be calm! We are befriending you. When we reach the tower, where you will be safe, I shall explain," gasped the mounting chief of police. A few moments later they were inside the prison gates, angry, impatient, fatigued.

"Is this a plan to prevent the duel?" demanded Lorry, turning upon the chief, who had dropped limply into a chair and was mopping his brow. When he could find his breath enough to answer, Dangloss said, and he might well have thrown a bombshell at their feet.

"There'll be no duel. Prince Lorenz is dead!"

"Dead?" gasped the others.

"Found dead in his bed, stabbed to the heart!" exclaimed the chief. "We have saved you from his friends, gentlemen, but I must say that you are still in a tight place."

He then related to them the whole story. Just before 6 o'clock Mirox had gone to the prince's room to prepare him for the duel. The door was closed, but unlocked, as he found after repeated knockings. Lorenz was lying on the bed, undressed and covered with blood. The horrified duke made a hasty examination and found that he was a dagger had been driven to his heart as he slept. The hotel was aroused, the police were called, and the excitement was at its highest pitch when the five friends came from their room a few minutes after 6.

"But what have we to do with this dreadful affair? Why are we made off here like criminals?" asked Lorry, a feeling of cruel gladness growing out of the knowledge that Lorenz was dead and that the princess was freed from her compact.

"My friend," said Dangloss slowly, "you are accused of the murder."

Lorry was too much stunned to be angry, too weak to protest. For some moments after the blow fell and English were speechless. Then came the protestations, the rage and the threats, through all of which English sat calmly. Finally he sought to quiet them, partially succeeding.

"Mr. Lorry, the evidence is very strong against you, but you shall not be unjustly treated. You are not a prisoner as yet. In Graustark a man who is accused of murder and who was seen by any one to commit the crime cannot be legally arrested until an accuser, heard, before the princess, who is also high priestess, and swear on his life that he knows the guilty man. The man who so accuses someone to forfeit his own life in case the other is proved innocent. If you are to be charged with the murder of the prince, some one must go before the witnesses and take oath—his life against yours. I am holding you here, sir, because it is the only place in which you are safe. Lorenz's friends would have torn you to pieces had we not found you first. You are not prisoners, and you may depart if you like it now."

"But how can they accuse me? I know nothing of the murder until I reached this place," cried Lorry, stopping short in his restless walk before the little haron.

"So you say, but—"

"If you accuse me, I'll kill you!" answered Lorry, holding himself tense. Anger came and held him.

"Be calm, sir," cautioned Dangloss. "I may have my views, but I am not willing to take oath before her royal highness. Listen! You were heard to say you would kill him. You began the fight. You were the aggressor, and there is no one else on earth, it is said, who could have dared to murder him. The man who did the stabbing entered the room through the hall door and left by the same. There are drops of blood in the carpet, leading direct to your door. On your knob are the prints of bloody fingers whose— or some one else—placed his hand in turning the key. It was this discovery, made by me and my men, that fully convinced the enraged friends of the dead prince that you were guilty. When we opened the door, you were gone. Then came the search, the fight at the head of the stairs and the race to the prison. The reason I saved you from that mob should be plain to you. I love my princess, and I do not forget that you risked your life, each of you, to protect her. I have done all that I can, gentlemen, to protect you in return. It means death to you if you fall into the hands of his followers just now. A few hours will see them off no doubt, but now—now it would be madness to face them. I know not what they have done to my men at the hotel—perhaps intercepted them."

There was anxiety in Dangloss' voice, and there was honesty in his keen old eyes. His charges now saw the situation clearly and unpobolized warmly for the words they had uttered under the pressure of somewhat extenuating circumstances. They expressed a willingness to remain in the prison until the excitement subsided, until some one swore his life against the supposed murderer. They were virtually prisoners, and they knew it well. Furthermore, they could not see that Baron Dangloss believed Lorry guilty of the murder. Intentions of innocence had been politely received and politely disregarded.

"Do you expect one of his friends to take the oath?" asked Lorry.

"Yes, it is sure to come."

"But you will not do so yourself?"

"No."

"I thank you, captain, for I see that you believe me guilty."

"I do not say you are guilty, remember, but I will say that if you did murder Prince Lorenz you have made the people of Graustark rejoice from the bottoms of their hearts, and you will be acquitted from one end of the land to the other."

"Thanked and astounded," said Lorry grimly.

Married in Rockport.

Robert R. Blainford, a railroad man of Rockville, Ky., and pretty Miss Rose Johnson, of that place, ran away from home last Thursday bent on evading the parental objections to their marriage. They went to Owensboro and from there reached Rockport Friday morning. A marriage license was procured in short order and in the parlor of the Veranda hotel the polite Esq. J. L. Stewart united them for better or worse. They returned to Kentucky where no doubt they have ere this received the parental blessing.—Rockport Democrat.

Coughing

"I was given up to die with quick consumption. I then began to use Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I improved at once, and am now in perfect health."—Chas. E. Hartman, Gibbstown, N. Y.

It's too risky, playing with your cough.

The first thing you know it will be down deep in your lungs and the play will be over. Begin early with Ayer's Cherry Pectoral and stop the cough.

Three sizes: 25c, 50c, $1. All druggists.

Consult your doctor. If he says take it, then do as he says. If he tells you not to take it, then don't take it. He knows. Leave it with him. We are willing.
